

The Public Disclosure Law

When Washington voters adopted Initiative 276 in 1972, they stated that the people wanted and had the right to know the financial affairs of candidates and elected officials in order to gauge whether a conflict may exist with government duties. The voters also declared that financing of election campaigns should be known and reported to the people.

What is a Political Committee?

A political committee is any person (except a candidate or an individual dealing with his or her own resources) who expects to receive contributions or make expenditures to support or oppose a candidate or ballot measure. The disclosure law applies to most groups organized to influence an election. Political parties, political action committees (PACs), and single-issue groups that disband after a single election are all political committees.

Proponents and opponents of state or local ballot measures that raise or spend money to support or oppose a ballot measure are also political committees.

What's the First Step?

Generally, committees must register with PDC within two weeks of being organized. However, if a committee organizes within three weeks of an election and will be active in that election, it must register within three business days of organizing. The registration statement (PDC Form C-1pc) identifies the committee's name, purpose, location, officers and the like. The original is filed with PDC; a copy goes to the county election office.

When registering, the committee will choose a reporting option. This choice is based on how much money the group intends to spend. Full reporting committees must file periodic disclosure reports (PDC Forms C-3 and C-4) showing contributions and expenditures.

Mini Reporting

If the committee limits itself to receiving and spending $5,000 or less and agrees to accept no more than $500 from any source, it may select Mini reporting. This option relieves the committee of the obligation to file frequent, detailed financial reports.

Only one report is required. The Registration Statement (Form C-1 pc) - due within 2 weeks or due within 3 days if committee organizes within 3 weeks of an election.

A continuing committee that chooses the mini reporting option must annually renew the option by filing the Registration Statement (Form C-1pc) each January. Otherwise, full reporting is expected with the beginning of the new calendar year.

Full Reporting

If the committee will raise or spend in excess of $5,000, or it accepts over $500 from one source, it must use the full reporting option and file reports according to the schedule on the right.

Required Reports Summary
Option	C-1pc	C-3	C-4

FULL	Yes	Yes See Full Reporting Schedule	Yes

Electronic Filing

Political committees that spend or "expect to expend" $10,000 in the current year are required to file campaign finance reports electronically.

PDC staff provides free electronic filing software and training to all candidates and political committees. Electronic filing information and instructions can be found on the PDC Web site at www.pdc.wa.gov.

Committees NOT filing electronically can find templates of all PDC forms on the PDC's Web site. Go to www.pdc.wa.gov, click on "Filer Assistance," and then "Form Templates."

Dates shown above are for 2008 primary and general elections only. Committees participating in special elections file C-4 reports 21 and 7 days before and on the 10th of the first month after that election.

Contribution Limits

A political committee may contribute no more than the following amounts to these recipients:

State Executive Candidate	$1,600 in primary 1,600 in general
State Legislative Candidate	800 in primary 800 in general
Judicial Candidates	1,600 in primary 1,600 in general
King, Pierce, Snohomish or Spokane County office candidates	800 in primary 800 in general
Port of Tacoma or Seattle Commissioner candidates	1,600 in primary 1,600 in general
All other local candidates	No State Limit*

Major or Minor State Political Party Committee	4,000 per year
County Central Committee	4,000 per year
Legislative District Committee	4,000 per year
Caucus Political Committee	800 per year
Ballot Proposition Committee & Others	No State Limit*

*$5,000 maximum during the 21 days before the general election. Check with local jurisdiction on other limits.

Committees may not accept anonymous contributions in excess of $300 per year or 1% of all contributions received in a year, whichever is greater.

Committees may not accept more than $5,000 in the aggregate from one source during the last 21 days before a general election, except from the state party committees.

Special reports are required for contributions of $1,000 or more during certain time frames. See instruction manual.

A political committee, prior to making a contribution to a state office candidate, must have received—during the 180 days before making the contribution—contributions of $10 or more from at least 10 people registered to vote in Washington.

Treasurer

The committee treasurer is critical to the campaign. Frequently, the treasurer must devote considerable time and effort to implementing record keeping and reporting requirements of the disclosure law. Only the treasurer may authorize expenditures and sign reports for a political committee.

Out-Of-State and Federal PACs

Committees not located in Washington State may contribute to in-state candidates and committees. No prior registration with PDC is required. Note qualification at left on giving to state office candidates, however.

On the 10th of the month after making a contribution, out-of-state and federal committees must file a report showing each contribution made, any contribution(s) the committee received during the calendar year exceeding $2,550 in the aggregate, the Washingtonians who have given to the committee, and the committee officers (PDC Form C-5). Failure to file the report may result in Commission enforcement action.

Political Advertising

Campaign ads must satisfy the political advertising provisions of the disclosure law. Detailed information is contained in campaign reporting instructions and the brochures on political advertising and electioneering communications.

Most political ads must identify the sponsor paying for the ads. Print ads need to include the sponsor's name and address. In radio and TV ads the sponsor's name must be clearly spoken. Use the phrase "Paid for by" or "Sponsored by" before the ID information. In partisan campaigns, all ads and signs must show the candidate's political party preference. Political ads not undertaken in conjunction with a candidate must carry additional, special identification.

Records

The key to campaign finance reporting is up-to-date, detailed records of each contribution and expenditure. Open a separate bank account for the committee.

Report all campaign income (contributions, loans, pledges, personal funds, etc.) and expenditures, including orders placed but not paid. All bank deposit slips, bank statements, receipts and cancelled checks should be kept as part of the record.

The law specifies that records be kept for five years after the campaign ends.
